Semi-literate lament of a business clerk that he has been left all alone at his store, his boss being "west a getting stock for a new Line of barges from Catskill to New York", while at home, "it is all California now days, hundreds are going all the time, there is a number that is at me to go, they make me a grate menny offers but I have not made up my mind to go yet and think I shal not very soone..."; and Samuel Grannis. Autograph Letter Signed. Le Roy, New York, April 7, 1852. 2pp.+ stampless address leaf. Last line of first page trimmed off. To Guy R. Phelps, Hartford, Connecticut. "Mr. Lucius Park, a member of your company whom I insured, has taken into his head that he must go to California this spring, he wishes to be gone over one year... perhaps 2 years, he wishes to go or return any of the routes that may seem to him best without any restrictions, he wants your permit on the best terms, if you do not do it for him, he will let his policy stop and apply to some other company, he is as well, sound and healthy to all appearance as ever..." An interesting sidelight of the Gold Rush, as Dr. Phelps was a former physician who became an insurance pioneer, establishing the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Co. in 1846. 131	Regulations Relative To The Admission Of Cadets Into The Military 1 pp. + integral blank leaf. No place or date in the text, but dated 1835 in ink docketing on verso. The first two West Point cadets graduated from the Academy in 1802. By 1835, there were still only 30 to 45 Cadets admitted annually but there was enough interest in the Academy for Andrew Jackson's War Department to issue what may have been this first informational circular on requirements for Admission, specifying that Cadet appointments were to be made with "care...taken to distribute them as equally as circumstances will permit, over the various sections of the Country in proportion to the number of Senators and Representatives in Congress." Two years later, in 1837 – date of the earliest copy of this circular held by the Library Congress in its massive collection of American broadsides – began the more formal process of appointing one Cadet from every congressional district. In addition to its historical significance in West Point history, this imprint is of typographic interest, as it was handsomely lithographed - a printing process still very uncommon in the 1830s (first used by Nathaniel Currier of Currier & Ives in 1834). We can locate no other copy of the 1835 circular in any American institution. Tiny yellow spots; very good. Est. 400 - 600

253	Two watercolor paintings of the Japanese Relocation Camp, Delta, Utah. Circa 1942-1945 Two watercolor paintings. The first, signed L/L, S. Mikami, 11x16". View of the Topaz Valley, near Delta Utah, the site of the Japanese Relocation Camp set up at the beginning of WWII under Executive order #9066. Charles Erabu "Suiko" Mikami born in Japan, studied Sumi and Japanese ink and brush painting as a teenager before immigrating to Seattle with his family in 1913. At the beginning of the war, he was interned at the Tule Lake Internment Center and then transferred to the Topaz Center in Delta, Utah. He continued to actively paint at Topaz and after the War, where he settled in Morgan Hill, CA as a Strawberry farmer. Some of his work is currently being shown in Seattle, WA. In an exhibit titled "Art Behind Barbwire" at the Northwest Nikke Museum which celebrates the 70th Anniversary of the signing of Executive Order # 9066 and the arts and crafts produced during that period in the camps. His work is also held in the Japanese American National Museum in Los Angeles, San Jose Japanese Museum and the Sacramento State Art Museum. The second painting is also an 11x15" watercolor which is identified on the reverse in pencil as "Delta, Utah Relocation Camp". It is not signed, but there are some Japanese characters, and a "chop" on the lower right corner. We have not been able to identify those, or whether this painting is also by Mikami, but they came together and very well might be. This view is a very moving and haunting image of a camp street scene in an evening sunset, showing two figures walking with lights on in the rows of cabins. Est. 700 - 1,000
